Will Not Sell Out Allies, Mendes-France Says

Premier Says Pact Not Matter Of Negotiation

Addresses National Press Club Following Parley With Dulles

WASHINGTON (UP)—French Premier Pierre Mendes-France today bluntly warned Russia today he will never sell out the allied plan for German rearmament for any Communist deal for peace in Europe.

Mendes-France said ratification of recent agreements on West European defense "is not a matter of negotiation with the East" and "cannot be regarded by the East as a trading point."

"Ratification should be accomplished quickly and, so far as France is concerned, I think I can assure you that it will be," Mendes-France said in a speech for the National Press Club.

The French premier said his people "do not see how ratification could become an obstacle to the easing of East-West tensions, if everyone genuinely wants that easing."

Orders Ratification
"I told the French Assembly that we would carry out the ratification of the London and Paris agreements parallel with efforts to improve our relations with the East," Mendes-France said. "This Western allies are doing and must continue to do no matter how discouraging previous talks and exchanges have been."

"The disappointing nature of the latest notes from the Soviet Union should not deflect us from our steady purpose of being always ready to negotiate, but to negotiate in good faith and with adequate preparation, not through improvised and spectacular conferences intended principally for propaganda."

He considers his "number one task" as prime minister of France is to fight against the deceptive attractions of communism with the positive weapons of truth, justice and progress.

Must Speed Progress
A primary aim in this fight, he said, is to reverse the "all too slow rate of progress in the development of a better standard of living" by "a great acceleration of our economic growth."

Earlier today Mendes-France and U. S. officials began hard bargaining on how many American dollars might be needed after Jan. 1 to support a 170,000-man French expeditionary force in Indochina.

The matter was one of the chief topics up for review as French Premier Pierre Mendes-France and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles met this morning at the State Department. Later today, the two diplomats planned to tackle European problems and review East-West relations.

America Follows Policy of Expediency, Not of Security, Hughes Tells Dinner Club

America has strange bedfellows because it feels it needs one tyrant to play against another, but it also has millions of friends throughout the world who realize it was America who helped them in their need.

This statement was made by John Williams Hughes, British world traveler, in an address before members of the Southern Illinois Dinner club last night at the Kurto country club.

Mr. Hughes stated his belief that America should take a more definite attitude with tyrant nations with an eternal hostility against every form of tyranny against the minds of man.

Our present policy is a policy of expediency, Mr. Hughes stated; and is not a policy which will bring security.

No Real Friends
Strange friends of the U. S. mentioned by Mr. Hughes included Tito of Yugoslavia and Franco of Spain, both of whom we feel are needed by America and both of whom need the U. S. "They will be our friends only as long as they need us," Mr. Hughes said.

In Asia, Mr. Hughes believes Nehru of India is doing a good job of fighting communism, considering the fear which India has for Russia and China who have no water blocks for invasion of that nation.

While Europe is very old and very tired, wanting to be left alone and in peace, the Asian nations are vigorous, Mr. Hughes said.

Aid Does Not Mean Domination
He pointed out that Britain gave India its freedom and made proper preparations for the Indians to take over their government bringing less confusion there than in other Asian nations.

In Indonesia, he said, the Dutch ruled with an iron hand, and while the Indonesians have a better standard of living under the Dutch than was the rule in other Asian nations, the people themselves were not allowed to take part in any of the government. The Indonesians, when they received their freedom from the Dutch, did not have the leaders to take over home rule, Mr. Hughes said.

America's problem, Mr. Hughes said, is to teach the Asian nations that aid from the U. S. does not mean later domination. In all history of Asia, he said, the nations there have learned that when they received any aid from European nations, the aid was later followed by colonialism and domination.

Next Meeting Dec. 9
He also pointed to the temptation for America to become proud and arrogant of its world leadership and make the mistake the British made when they were world leaders.

He said he did not believe America would become arrogant and millions of people throughout the world realize their hope of the future lies with America.

Bruce Burnett, president of the dinner club, was in charge of the meeting. The speaker was introduced by Ray Durham.

The next meeting will be on Dec. 9 with an Opportunity speaker.

Saline Ass'n for Mentally Retarded Children to Hold Tag Day Tomorrow

The Saline Association for Mentally Retarded Children is sponsoring a "tag" day tomorrow beginning at 9 a. m.

Seventy-five per cent of the net proceeds will stay in the local unit, 15 per cent will go to the National association and 10 per cent will be sent to the Illinois Council for Mentally Retarded Children. Contributions may be sent to the local postmaster or to the organization's treasurer, Mrs. Geneva Mitchell, 119 Water street.

The association is urging membership from Galatia and Eldorado and other places in the county where there are mentally retarded children. For more information persons are asked to contact the president of the organization, Mrs. Aaron Dudley, 318-J.

Thieves Take $1,000 Loot in Five Breakins

Five business firms in Saline county were entered by thieves Thursday night and more than $1,000 in money and merchandise were taken. There were three breakins in Eldorado and two in Galatia. County Sheriff Paul Spangler's office reports.

Deputy Sheriff Isham Threet, who made the investigation in Eldorado, reports the Vaught service station on Dewey street, Moss Bait Co., on South State street and Burnett's Lumber and Hardware company on East Locust were burglarized.

The Moss Bait Co. suffered the heaviest loss, approximately $800. All the guns in the store, plus several cases of shotgun shells, hunting clothing and reels were taken. The total loss will not be known until a complete inventory is made, it is said.

At the Vaught oil station $189.94 in cash and 375 packages of cigarettes were reported taken.

The loss at Burnett's included seven watches, six pocket knives and about $50.00 in cash.

There were two breakins of grocery stores in Galatia Thursday night, it is reported. Deputy Sheriff Isham Threet and Henry Devar made the investigations.

At Cockrum's grocery 10 cartons of cigarettes, $15.00 in money, two pork loins, a Boston butt shoulder, two butt ends of hams, many cans of coffee, orange juice and other canned goods were taken.

Thirty cartons of cigarettes, two cartons of razor blades and $17.50 in money were taken from Hill's grocery.

In each case, entry to the store was made through the front door, it is reported.

The breakins apparently occurred under midnight as the two articles taken from Cockrum's were left on the front walk and were dry when found and the rain last night continued until sometime after 11 o'clock.

Hubby Advertisers For Companion, Wife Gets Divorce

LOS ANGELES (UP)—Mrs. Dorothy Walters, 40, was granted a divorce Thursday when she testified that her husband ran the following ad in a newspaper immediately after she left for a vacation.

"Man, 53, no car, no looks, no hero, no qualities, no money, no hero, no nothing, seeks congenial companion to go places and do things in pursuit of happiness."

Robert Walters, who did not contest the divorce, said he received a great many interesting replies.

Farm Group Calls For Laws to Remove Allotments, Quotas

CHICAGO (UP)—The Illinois Agricultural Assn. called for legislation which would remove acreage allotments and marketing quotas on certain crops—with as little dependence on government as possible—at the close of its annual convention here Thursday.

Delegates reelected Charles B. Shuman president and elected Clarence McCauley, Mount Vernon, to succeed Chester McCord, retired after 20 years, as a director. Earle Johnson, Huntley, was elected to succeed Earl Hughes, Woodstock, as another director.

The IAA called for a statewide conference of all organizations directly concerned with water use "to study present and future needs."

A resolution calling for this and other steps to consider the problem of falling levels of ground water in Illinois, and other water problems, passed with little debate.

Supports Conservation
Referred to the board of directors for further study was a recommendation to move the IAA headquarters from Chicago to a downstate location.

In shaping the national farm policy, the IAA said that "if government is allowed to fix prices, which it does with high price supports, it must also be allowed to dictate production privileges."

"When this occurs, the ideals of freedom and individual initiative which have always characterized American agriculture will be lost."

The IAA said it will support changes in agricultural legislation to provide a conservation allotment "designed to promote soil fertility, maintenance and improvement," work toward "removal of acreage allotments and marketing of quotas on specific crops," and "gradually adjust price supports on feed grains and soybeans to levels which will permit these commodities to move through normal trade channels."

Gov't to Borrow $17.3 Billion to Refinance Bonds

WASHINGTON (UP)—The government will try next week to issue securities to the investors, or, in effect, "re-borrow" the money. It will be the largest re-borrowing since the government refinanced nearly $21,000,000,000 of its indebtedness last February.

The Treasury does not raise any spending money through these refinancing. In fact, it loses a little.

The new securities are offered only to holders of maturing issues—generally banks, insurance companies and the Federal Reserve System—and inevitably some of these investors choose to take their money back instead.

A Treasury official said the government's revenues will probably cover its spending needs until sometime in the spring, or later.

The new securities being offered next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday are: A Treasury bond which will come due in eight years and eight months and pay 2½ per cent interest; a "certificate of indebtedness" which matures in one year and pays 1½ per cent interest and another certificate coming due in eight months and paying 1½ per cent interest.

Dr. Sheppard's Accuser Tells of Questioning After Wife's Murder

CLEVELAND, Ohio (UP)—Dr. Samuel H. Sheppard, speaking calmly and lucidly, stated a few hours after his wife's murder that he believed there were two persons in the room when his wife was killed, a Cleveland detective testified today.

Homicide Detective Robert F. Schottke testified at Dr. Sheppard's murder trial that he questioned the osteopath-surgeon in his hospital room at 11 a. m. last July 4.

Two hours before that, the defendant had told Coroner Samuel R. Gerber only that he had seen "a form" upstairs near his wife's bedroom.

Detective Schottke, the first person to point an accusing finger at

Dr. Sheppard after the murder, was the state's 10th witness in its attempt to send the handsome Bay Village brain surgeon to the electric chair.

The state contends Dr. Sheppard, 30, bludgeoned his 31-year-old pregnant wife to death before dawn last Independence Day after quarreling with her about his affairs with other women.

Schottke was questioned by Asst. Prosecutor Thomas Parrino.

Tells of Questioning
He said he and his partner, Detective Patrick Gareau, got to the murder home about 9 a. m. He said he made a search and found "no visible means of forcible entry" into the house.

Then, he said, he went to Bay View hospital and questioned Dr. Sheppard, who had a bruise under his right eye but no other visible bruises. The Sheppard family of osteopaths runs the hospital.

Schottke said he questioned the doctor about a house guest, Dr. Lester Hoversten, who had left the day before the murder.

He said Dr. Sheppard admitted he had heard rumors that Dr. Hoversten was "infatuated" with Mrs. Sheppard. Dr. Sheppard had said "they might be true but he paid no attention to them because he knew his wife was faithful."

Dr. Hoversten will be a state witness, probably next week, and has said he will testify Dr. Sheppard and his wife quarreled bitterly over the doctor's attentions to other women.

Gives Detailed Account
Whereas Dr. Sheppard had been vague in his story at 9 a. m. to Dr. Gerber about what happened, Schottke told the jury of seven men and five women that at 11 a. m. Dr. Sheppard gave this story:

"He told us that late in the evening of July 3 he fell asleep on the living room couch. That he was awakened when he heard his wife scream. He ran upstairs, and when he got into her room he thought he could see a form."

"He heard someone working over his wife. He was struck on the side of the head."

"He woke up and ran downstairs and thought he saw a form going out the front (Lake Erie side) door. He pursued the form down the stairs."

"He tackled the form on the beach, they struggled and he was knocked out. When he regained consciousness, he was on the beach, on his stomach, being walloped around by the waves."

Called Mayor
"He went back into the house, dazed, and tried to administer to his wife but believed she was gone. He wandered around thinking of a phone number and finally phoned Mayor (J. Spencer) Houk."

Schottke said he and Gareau had asked Dr. Sheppard questions.

Postpone Action On Nomination Of Justice Harlan

WASHINGTON (UP)—A group of Senate Democrats acted today to postpone action until next year on the nomination of John Marshall Harlan to be a Supreme Court justice.

Chairman William Langer (R-N.D.) postponed hearings on Harlan's nomination before his Judiciary Subcommittee after Sen. James O. Eastland (D-Miss.) said he would oppose confirmation at this time.

Eastland said he was speaking for "half a dozen" Democrats who would fight the nomination unless action is postponed until the new Democratic-controlled Congress meets in January.

Eastland said he and the other Democrats want "more information" about Harlan. He said they won't necessarily oppose the appointment "when the time comes."

Subcommittee counsel J. G. Sourwine said six objections against Harlan had been received by the subcommittee. He said they were based on three grounds that:

1. Harlan was a Rhodes Scholar who went to Oxford in Britain.

2. Harlan was a member of the advisory board of Atlantic Union, a private organization whose aim is to promote closer cooperation in the Atlantic community.

3. Harlan was "inexperienced."

Castle, Senate Leader Drach Also Summoned

Subpenas Issued At Request of Defense Attorneys

SPRINGFIELD (UP)—Atty. Gen. Latham Castle was subpoenaed today to testify in a southern Illinois labor racketeering trial, the third state official to receive a summons.

Gov. William G. Stratton and Sen. George E. Drach, Republican majority leader of the state Senate, got subpoenas Thursday to appear in Federal District Court at East St. Louis Nov. 30.

Castle said a subpoena was served on him in his office at the state Supreme Court Building today. All were issued at the request of defense attorneys in the forthcoming trial of Evan R. Dale, Carbondale, and James Bateman, Murphysboro, union officials.

Dale, president of the Southern Illinois District Council of the AFL laborers union, and Bateman, representing the plumbers and pipefitters union, are charged with trying to extort $1,030,000 from contractors on a Joppa electric energy plant.

Stratton Subpena Questioned
Castle said he, Stratton and most Republicans who ran for state office in 1952 met Dale, who has been active in politics, during their campaign in southern Illinois.

"I know him very slightly," Castle added.

There has been speculation that Dale's lawyers were subpoenaing the state officers as "character" witnesses. The lawyer handling the defense case was vacationing, however, and couldn't be reached.

Castle said he presumed he and Drach would have to testify as "private citizens." However, he said there was some question about the governor.

The attorney general, Stratton's legal adviser under the law, said there was no doubt the governor could be given a subpoena but he didn't know whether they could force him to appear.

Dale and Bateman were charged with trying to extort the $1,030,000 from Ebasco Services, Inc., and Electric Energy, Inc., in violation of federal anti-racketeering statutes.

Both Stratton and Drach said they were puzzled about why they were summoned.

The subpoenas bore the name of the law firm of McRoberts and Hoban, East St. Louis, defense counsel in the case. Drach said he carried this notation:

"This subpoena is issued on application of the defendant."

Atty. James McRoberts said he was unfamiliar with subpoenas in the case, and the law firm member who handled them was unavailable.

A process server dropped in on Stratton's "open house" to bring him his subpoena Thursday.

"I have a subpoena for you in the Evan Dale case in Federal Court," the man was quoted as saying as he handed the summons to Stratton.

Dale Active in Politics
At aide said Stratton may have met Dale briefly in 1950, when Stratton ran for state treasurer, and possibly in 1952, when he ran for governor. Dale has been active in politics.

This aide said Stratton wasn't sure why his testimony was wanted, but speculated that perhaps Dale wanted Stratton to be a "character witness."

Drach said he didn't know why he was subpoenaed, either, and he had written for a copy of the indictment.

Drach speculated, however, that the subpoena might be connected somehow with his work for many years as counsel for the Associated General Contractors of Illinois.

"It could be I was present some place when something took place," Drach said.

FBI Arrests Grandson Of Former Governor; Charge Red Activity

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UP)—The FBI today held Junius Irving Scales, grandson of a former governor of North Carolina, in federal jail on charges he held membership in an organization advocating the violent overthrow of the U. S. government.

Agents who arrested Scales Thursday night said he was the underground leader of the Communist party in North and South Carolina and Tennessee.

Scales' bond was set at $100,000 and preliminary hearing was scheduled for 10 a. m. Tuesday.

Scales, the 34-year-old grandson of former governor A. M. Scales of North Carolina, protested the bond was "so high it's almost unconstitutional." He was accompanied by counsel at his arraignment before U. S. Commissioner Leslie Nicholson but indicated he would make no attempt to post bond.

The WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND By DREW PEARSON

DREW PEARSON Says: Expected Senate Censure Vote Crystallizes; Rep. Hollifield Unearths Letter Showing Chum-
my Relations Between AEC And Holding Company; California Congressman Cites Military Domination Of AEC Commission.

WASHINGTON. — Here are the hard-core Republican senators who Joe McCarthy expects will vote for him: Bricker, Ohio; Bridges,
N. H.; Butler, Md.; Dirksen, Ill.;
Goldwater, Ariz.; Jenner, Ind.; Malone, Nev.; Mundt, S. D.; and Welker, Idaho.

Here are other Republicans who may either go along with Joe or favor a compromise: Capehart, Ind.; Hickenlooper, Iowa; Knowland, Calif.; Langer, N. D.; Martin, Pa.; Schoeppel, Kans.; and Wiley, Wisc. Others who are wavering include Barrett, Wyo.; Beall, Md.; and Dworshak, Idaho.

If McCarthy gets two Democrats, as he claims privately, they'll probably be Eastland of Mississippi and Daniel of Texas. Another Democrat, Lennor of North Carolina, made some pro-McCarthy cracks when he arrived in Washington, but got burned by them;
while Holland of Florida is another who might possibly stray from the Democratic fold.

ARMY FAVORS EBASCO
Congressman Chet Hollifield of California has run across some interesting connections between the Army, the public utility lobby and the Atomic Energy Commission.

His discoveries make it appear that the Army Engineers are hand in glove with Electric Bond and Share, the big holding company which is behind the Dixon-Yates contract.

Hollifield also pointed out the fact that the Atomic Energy Commission is now dominated by military men, though Congress carefully passed a law providing for civilian control of the atom.

What Hollifield discovered was a letter from Maj. Gen. E. L. Robinson of the Army Engineers to another general, Kenneth Nichols, manager of the Atomic Energy Commission. It read: "Dear Ken-—for your information, herewith is a copy of a letter from Johnny Hardin verifying his position with relation to the location of the Dixon-Yates steam plant." The letter was signed, "Robby."

General Robinson enclosed another letter from Gen. John Hardin, also of the Army Engineers, who had written "Robby" (Robinson) about meeting with "representatives of Ebasco" (Electric Bond and Share) on a proposed site for the plant near West Memphis, Tenn.

Then General Hardin added some interesting intelligence in a postscript: "They (Ebasco representatives)," he said, "seemed pleased with the conference. We aimed to be helpful, rather than obstructive."

While Republican members fiddled, Congressman Hollifield pressed General Nichols for an explanation of that unusual language.
He maintained that the Army Engineers should have been neutral, rather than either "helpful" or "obstructive."

"OBSTRUCTIVE" GENERAL
Nichols, however, hedged: "I do not know the meaning of that."
Hollifield was not satisfied.
"When I read this letter," he said, "I wondered about the postscript, because it so happens that I was chairman of the Military Housing subcommittee in Alaska when General Hardin was in the Pentagon, and the particulars I received from General Hardin and the difficulty I had then indicated to me that he must have looked up my inquiry with a little bit different opinion than he did yours."

"I attach special significance to this," continued Hollifield, "and think that in the future, if I have to deal with Johnny, I will come to Ken and ask Ken to give me a letter."

The humor was lost completely in Gen. "Ken" Nichols.
"I would be pleased to do that,"
he replied stiffly.

"As I look at this (the Dixon-Yates contract)," continued Hollifield, "I could almost believe that it is a military operation. We have General Robby and Colonel Mitch-am and General Kenneth. And we have the commander-in-chief, General Eisenhower, and Admiral Strauss (chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission).

"So it looks like a military operation, and I wonder if the cooperation had anything to do with the conception of the line of command."

By this time, even Republican committee colleagues were laughing. But General Nichols just didn't think there was anything funny about it at all.

Note—the giant Electric Bond and Share Corporation, which the Army Engineers seemed to favor, was investigated by Hugo Black before he left the Senate for the Supreme Court and was one reason for passage of the Holding Corporation Act to disband the big holding companies and their grip on local utilities. The Dixon-Yates investigation has shown that Electric Bond and Share still dominates local utilities in the south, despite the Holding Corporation Act.

OUTSIDE INTERFERENCE
Undersecretary of Agriculture
True D. Morse is sorry he let himself be talked into campaigning against fiery Democrat Wayne Hays, congressman from Ohio's 14th district.

Safely re-elected, Hays phoned Morse last week and sarcastically told him: "I'm sorry I wasn't around to return the greeting when you came to say hello last month, but I was busy campaigning."

Morse was duly embarrassed and mumbled something about "nothing personal."

"I thought you'd like to know," Hays continued, "that this was the first election in which I carried the county where you spoke. Before, it had always gone Republican."

"You're welcome any time you want to visit," Hays concluded cheerily.

Note — Ironically, Undersecretary Morse didn't want to get mixed up in the Ohio campaign and did so only after much urging from GOP Chairman Len Hall.

Early Order Gets Best Turkey For Thanksgiving

CARBONDALE, Ill.—The housewife planning a turkey dinner for Thanksgiving should order the bird from her supplier at least a week before it is needed, says Scott Hin-ners, Southern Illinois university poultry specialist.

By placing an early order she has a better opportunity to obtain a plump, well-fattened, tender turkey of the size needed. Allow from one-half to three-fourths pound of dressed weight turkey for each adult who will be served.

The days when there were only large turkeys available for the holiday meal are past, Hinners points out. Turkey production is a big, specialized enterprise today and turkeys have improved the birds by selective breeding. Today the housewife can buy almost any size turkey she needs.

If the family cannot consume a whole turkey at a meal the cook may prepare only a half or quarter of the bird. Preparing turkeys in halves or quarters does not cause the loss of flavor in roasting, Hinners says.

Left-over turkey should be no problem, he adds. Sliced cold turkey with nut bread; creamed turkey on toast, in patty shells, or in potato baskets; turkey pot pie, and turkey croquettes are delicious.

Most people prefer a large turkey hen to a turkey tom of the same size, Hinners says, but wellfattened large toms are fine flavored, usually cost less per pound, and yield a higher percentage of edible meat, making them the most economical.

Large increases in turkey production in recent years have made them comparatively cheap and within the reach of most budgets.
More and more, turkeys are becoming not just a Thanksgiving meat item but are served all year, a tendency that needs acceleration, Hinners says.

Dirksen Plans to Offer Compromise In Senate Nov. 29

WASHINGTON — Sen. Everett Dirksen (R-Ill.) said today he probably will introduce a compromise plan when the Senate resumes its McCarthy censure debate Nov. 29.

Meanwhile, Sen. George W. Malone (R-Nev.) temporarily withdrew his idea of seeking to kill the censure move by a vote to table it. Malone, who originally planned to file his tabling motion today if the Senate had been in session, said he will "take another look at the situation" when debate resumes on the resolution to censure Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R-Wis.).

Senate Republican Leader William F. Knowland insisted that the censure fight "definitely" will go to a vote, despite some predictions that the recess might be used as a springboard to filibuster the issue to death.

After seven days of debate, the Senate voted 76-2 late Thursday to adjourn until Nov. 29 to give McCarthy time to recover from an elbow injury.

Up to Senators as Individuals to Send Flowers to McCarthy

WASHINGTON — It's up to senators as individuals whether they want to send flowers to Sen. Joseph McCarthy while he is in the hospital.

Sen. Everett Dirksen (R-Ill.) said in answer to a question by Sen. William Langer (R-N.D.) that he had checked Senate rules and could find no rule about sending flowers to an ill member.

But Dirksen said, "Any member is at liberty to send flowers to the hospital if the sweet and gentle spirit moves him."

Judge Youngdahl Demands Apology From Justice Dep't

WASHINGTON — The Justice Department greeted with silence today Federal Judge Luther W. Youngdahl's demand that it publicly apologize for asking him to withdraw as judge in the forthcoming Owen Lattimore trial.

Youngdahl, in a rare memorandum filed in Federal District Court here, asked the Justice Department to admit it was wrong in "charging he would be biased in Lattimore's favor."

Together they studied the sleeping man. He was probably in his middle thirties. His hair was black as were his extravagantly long eyelashes. His narrow face had a gray cast. He was so emaciated that the skin pulled tight over his cheekbones, his nose was unduly prominent, and there were hollows at his temples. The long, finely shaped hand that dangled over the side of the couch was like that of a skeleton and the wristbone protruded.

Daggett considered him. "He looks half starved to me. Make some coffee, Greg, and boil a couple of eggs. Even you can't spoil those. See what else we've got handy. Before doing that, you had better cover him up. He must have got chilled out there."

Greg threw a blanket over the recumbent figure and got busy in the kitchenette. When the food was ready he touched a gaunt shoulder. The stranger sat up, alert, startled, and his hand crept to his throat. For a moment the three men regarded one another with mutual curiosity. The foreigner looked from Greg to Daggett and then at the trailer. His dark brows drawn together in perplexity.

"What is this?" he asked in careful English, his voice rasping. "A kind of portable house," Daggett explained.

"Who are you?" "Go ahead and eat," Daggett advised him. "You can ask questions later."

The man nodded and began to eat as though he had no other interest in the world, as though nothing mattered but the food in front of him. No one spoke until he had finished.

"I have not eaten like that for years," he declared. "Eaten until I was not hungry any more. It is a pleasant sensation. Thank you very much." It was difficult to tell by his accent what his nationality might be.

Daggett offered the stranger a cigarette, which he refused. "I do not know what my status is here. Whether I am a guest or a prisoner."

"I don't know either," Daggett acknowledged. "I take it you don't belong in this country."

"My name is Rupert Landusky. I am an alien and I have no entry permit." Behind their ridiculously long lashes, the man's eyes looked amused rather than uneasy.

Daggett introduced himself and Greg with punctilious courtesy. "What would you have done," he countered, "if we had not picked you up?"

Landusky smiled. "I think it is most likely that I would have died." Greg set down the coffee pot with a bang and the alien laughed, a croaking sound.

Daggett ignored both Greg's hostility and Landusky's mockery. "You probably would, at that. Nice way to get pneumonia."

"That's what I thought." There was a sardonic expression in Landusky's eyes which Greg distrusted. "And with half a bottle of cognac on an empty stomach it was not a disagreeable idea." He looked from Greg to Daggett and unerringly selected the latter as his ally. "I hope I am not an embarrassment to you. There seems to be no room here for a third person."

The fellow either took it for granted that they were going to protect him or he was trying a bluff. "What is your country?" Daggett asked.

"There seems to be considerable disagreement about that," Landusky said. "I am what they call a displaced person. I have no citizenship anywhere."

"What did you hope to find here?" "Irony gleamed in the long narrow eyes. "One never learns not to hope." Landusky struggled with a yawn. "Fantastic as the idea may be, I would like to put down roots somewhere."

"Have you any friends in this country?" Daggett asked.

Landusky shook his head, smiling. "The Canadian pilot who flew me over the border is the only human being I know on this side of the world and we have been acquainted less than 12 hours."

"Any money?" The alien turned out his pockets one by one, as though he and Daggett were sharing a private joke. He piled the contents on a table: a comb, a toothbrush, toothpaste, razor, handkerchief, key, a $5 bill, a $1 bill, and forty cents in coins.

"You can't get far on that," Daggett remarked. "You were mad to start out with so few assets."

Landusky smiled with a flash of white teeth. "Only desperate."

Again there was an undercurrent of mockery in his tone. Greg was beginning to recognize it as a kind of covert defiance, as though Landusky were saying: You, safe in your streamlined trailer, what do you know of the jungle through which I have come alive? The fellow yawned. He was shivering.

"Get out my gray sweater, will you, Greg? Our friend is not dressed for this climate." Daggett watched while the stranger pulled on the sweater. "You wouldn't last long in this climate, dressed as you are, and no money."

Landusky nodded as though he sympathized with Daggett's dilemma.

"Get some rest," Daggett decided. "In the meantime we'll think of something."

The alien promptly closed his eyes and went to sleep.

RCA Accused of Radio-TV Monopoly

NEW YORK (AP) — The Justice Department today accused the Radio Corporation of America of monopolizing patent licensing in the radio-television industry.

The department filed a civil antitrust suit against the company in Federal District Court. It asked the court to end the alleged monopoly.

36 Mayors to Help Promote Southern Illinois

HERRIN, Ill. (AP) — Mayors from 36 cities organized the Mayors' Association of Southern Illinois at an organizational meeting here Thursday night.

Mayor Dave H. Miller of Herrin was elected president of the group, which expects to get a non-profit corporation charter within a week. Yearly membership fees were set at $10 for cities and $5 for villages.

The association plans its first meeting in January and will meet every 60 days thereafter to work on its goal of more water resources and industry for southern Illinois and to promote legislation beneficial to the area.

The mayors reaffirmed resolutions passed at an informal meeting two months ago urging completion of Devil's Kitchen Dam and a half-cent retail sales tax to boost sagging municipal funds.

A resolution also was passed urging creation of the proposed 13,500-acre Rend City lake to supply water to communities near Benton.

Miller said membership in the association is open to mayors from communities south of a line from East St. Louis to Lawrenceville.

Other mayors elected as officers were: John Wright, Carbondale, vice president; K. Thurmond, Johnston City, secretary-treasurer, and John Unchucha, Eldorado. Rogers C. Miller, Du Quoin; H. L. Yates, Cairo; Joe Williams, Murphysboro, and Harry Adams, McLeansboro, directors.

2,000 Attend Truman Library Fund Auction

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. (AP) — Former President Harry S. Truman said Thursday night he was "overwhelmed" when 2,000 persons attended an auction to raise funds for a library to house his presidential papers.

"It's heart warming," Mr. Truman told the crowd. "A person who has been through as many conflicts as I have is impressed when the folks of his home town turn out like this. It is a compliment no one can deserve."

The top price paid for any of the donated items was $275 for a copy of the book, "Mr. President," by William Hillman. The book was autographed and donated by Mr. Truman, and he smiled broadly when Frank Glenn, a Kansas City bookdealer, made the high bid.

Other items donated for the sale included two cemetery lots, which brought $21; groceries; a Thomas Hart Benton painting; a boxer pup that sold for $32, and a pair of antique bowls donated by Mrs. Truman which brought a top bid of $50.

The auction committee chairman, Dr. G. R. Tompkins, estimated the three-hour auction brought in about $3,000.

Honolulu, capital of the Hawaiian Islands, is located on the Island of Oahu.

Mrs. D. L. Shain reports that she has in her home the original Robert Ingersoll desk that he used in his law office in Raleigh. The dedication of the historical marker by the Illinois Historical society will be tomorrow in Raleigh. Mrs. Shain invites the members of the County Bar association to come to her home, 209 East Church, to view this desk.

Four Escape Penal Farm But Are Recaptured

VANDALIA, Ill. (AP) — Four prisoners escaped from the Illinois State Penal Farm at 2 a. m. today but were recaptured about six hours later in an abandoned farm house near here.

Warden Frank Murphy said a posse of guards from the farm captured the escapees who offered no resistance. A statewide alarm had been sent out after the four slugged a guard and fled.

The escapees, William Frenchak, Fred German, Richard B. Noel, and Stanley E. Johnson slugged Guard Sgt. Leo Myers, about 45, with a wooden roller from a mop bucket wringer and took his keys to let themselves out of their dormitory.

Myers suffered a broken foot in the scuffle. The prisoners took his wallet containing $17.

Noel, 29, Macomb, was serving one year and 1,056 days to work out a fine for malicious mischief; Johnson, 18, Grand Chain, was serving nine months for pilfering a motor vehicle; Frenchak, 19, Algonquin, was sentenced to six months for assault with a deadly weapon; and German, 24, Plainville, was serving a one year term for petty larceny.

There is no fence at the penal farm and the prisoners had no trouble leaving the grounds.

State police said they had no reports of any automobiles stolen in the area and penal farm officials said no firearms were missing. They sent out a statewide alarm.

Churchill and Eden Win Tests On British Policy

LONDON — Prime Minister Winston Churchill's Conservative government today celebrated a vic- tory at the polls and parliamentary approval of German rearmament and stronger British ties to Euro- pean defense.
The Conservatives won an im- portant election in West Derby, a suburb of Liverpool, Thursday and caused many observers to believe Churchill soon will step aside in favor of Anthony Eden.
In the House of Commons, the Churchill-Eden defense policy won approval by an historic 264-4 vote, reversing centuries of isolation. Most Laborites supported the pol- icy but four pacifists defied party orders to abstain from voting, thus inviting expulsion.
Conservative John Woolam, a young lawyer, won the West Derby election over Laborite Cyril Fenton by a majority of 2,508 votes—an in- crease of 801 over the plurality polled by Sir David Maxwell Fyfe in 1951.
Fyfe's seat was made vacant when he was elevated to the peer- age. He won the Commons seat in 1935 but his margin of victory in subsequent elections grew thin- ner, causing unusual interest to be focused on this election.
The West Derby election was considered so significant that Con- servative "big names" such as Health Minister Harold MacMillan and Supply Minister Selwyn Lloyd went to the suburb to stump for Woolam, who, at 27, will become the youngest member of the House of Commons.

Stratton Threatened With Court Action Against Toll Roads

SPRINGFIELD (CP) — Gov. Wil- liam G. Stratton, threatened with court action if he insists on push- ing his billion dollar toll road net- work through Chicago suburbs, will wait until Monday before he makes public three surveys of the Toll Road Commission.

Western Springs and Deerfield citizens threatened the governor with law suits Thursday unless he abandoned plans for a "Tri-State" toll road around Chicago.

Rowland Returns To Chicago Cubs As Vice President

CHICAGO — Clarence (Pants) Rowland, who piloted the Chicago White Sox to a world championship in 1917, was welcomed back to the Windy City today as executive vice president of the Chicago Cubs.

Rowland resigned as president of the Pacific Coast League Thursday with a reported two more years to go on his $17,500 a year contract.

Rowland was in the Cubs organization before he became president of the Pacific Coast League in 1944. Wrigley said Rowland's principal job is going to be working with the Cubs' weakest spot—the team itself.

20 Bull Dog Players Receive Varsity Letters at Banquet; 25 Given Awards by Shrine Club

Coach O'Brien of SIU Gives Address; Award Other Letters

Master of ceremonies was Lawrence Caluffetti, HTHS athletic director and head coach of the football squad. Before presenting the varsity awards, assisted by Coach Gene Bland, Caluffetti said that for putting forth effort and desire, and a determination to win, he believed that this year's squad was tops.

"There was no star, just a swell ball club," he said of the team that finished second in the South Section conference. "It had a wonderful spirit. There were seven or eight leaders on the team."

O'Brien, who played against Caluffetti in high school days and who played with him in college, praised the local mentor, then told the gridders that they owed their school good citizenship.

Maintain Pace, O'Brien Urges

He told them that if they went to college the first thing that would be asked about them by a college coach would be "What kind of a student is he?"

"You've done a fine job under a very fine coach," O'Brien said to them. "Can you maintain this pace as a citizen? I hope you can."

Charles Skaggs, representing the Shrine club, presented the gold footballs to the letter winners and to Jack Foster, Marvin Harlow, Phillip Morse, Ronnie Reynolds and Lyndell Stacy.

Gary Crews received a varsity manager's award.

Other Letters Awarded

Also receiving letters were members of the Bull Pup team, freshmen who did not make the Bull Pup awards but played enough in frosh competition, and the yell leaders.

Coaches Jim McKee and Jess Nichols presented Bull Pup awards to the following: Gary Aldridge, Donald Biggs, Bob Clark, Charles Cummins, Jim Cummins, Dick Drue, Cole Eddy, Rennie Fulkerson, Ray Hassett, Bill Henshaw, Melvin Hicks, Cletus Killman, Jim Lambert, Bob Shewmaker, Trevor Whiteside, Lou Ray Williams, John Ziegler and Ronnie Vick. By secret ballot, Ziegler and Vick were named honorary captains of the team for the past season.

Gifts Presented to Girls

Before Mr. O'Brien showed films of the SIU-Illinois Normal game, Co-Captain Seright presented gifts to Mr. Caluffetti and Mr. Bland, Co-Captains Ziegler and Vick gave gifts to Mr. McKee and Mr. Nichols and Judy Franks presented a gift to Miss Etherton. Co-Captains Seright and Polk received autographed footballs from the varsity squad.

During the dinner Miss Mona Wickham played organ music. The invocation was by Tony Beal, junior fullback.

Twenty Bull Dog varsity football players—including 13 juniors—last night received their varsity letters at a football banquet at which Bill O'Brien, grid coach at Southern Illinois, was the principal speaker.

A group of 25 varsity players—who also received gold footballs from the Egyptian Shrine club for beating Mt. Vernon this year in the annual Shrine benefit contest with the Rams.

The banquet was held in Bonnell gymnasium, with Mrs. Marshall Cothran of the Home Economics department of HTHS in charge of the meal. She was assisted by girls in her classes.

NEW YORK — Fraley's Folies and the weekend football "winners" — which provides the laugh of the week, anyhow.

Games of the Week
Ohio State over Michigan — The Wolverines have been coming strong, and they'll be tougher than putting toothpaste back in a tube. But Ohio State has a better attack and also will be "up" for victory.

Southern Cal over UCLA — This is looking for the upset, of which there have been many every week. On the surface, the Uclans appear a solid favorite, but southern Cal has been galloping forward and has the power to upset the dope bucket.

The East
Pitt over Penn State—Gathering momentum.
Princeton over Dartmouth — Youngsters found themselves.
Yale over Harvard — Bouncing back strong.

Also: Columbia over Rutgers, Syracuse over Fordham, Boston University over Temple, Holy Cross over Connecticut, Bucknell over Delaware and Lehigh over Lafayette.

The Midwest
Iowa over Notre Dame—They're always "up" for this one.
Wisconsin over Minnesota—Vote for the home team.

Oklahoma over Nebraska—In a country canter.
Purdue over Indiana — The big bounce.

Also: Illinois over Northwestern, Michigan State over Marquette, Missouri over Kansas, Wichita over Detroit and Colorado over Kansas State.

The South
Duke over South Carolina—Anything can happen.

Miami over Alabama—The Crimson Tide is low.

Also: Wyoming over Tulsa, Arizona over Tempe State and New Mexico over New Mexico Aggies.

The West
California over Stanford—No rest for the weary.

Centralia and East St. Louis Clash Tonight

EAST ST. LOUIS — The stage was set today for a headon collision between two giants of 1954 Illinois prep football.

The East St. Louis Flyers, riding a 30-game winning streak, tonight will host Centralia's Orphans, who sport a perfect season record.

Some 10,000 to 12,000 fans are expected to turn out to witness the clash between the two schools, rated as the toughest in the southern half of Illinois, if not the entire state.

East St. Louis Coach Wirt Downing said Centralia's main threats appear to be tailback Bobby Joe Mason, one of the finest football and basketball players developed in Southern Illinois in recent years, and fullback Paul Ritter.

"We're naturally making special preparations aimed at stopping their single wing attack," the veteran Flyer coach said. "We've played only one other team this year using it."

That team was University High of St. Louis, a 13-0 victim of Downing's eleven—the slimmest margin of victory chalked up by the Flyers during the 1954 campaign.

Both Downing and Centralia Coach Jim Evers reported their teams were at full strength and in good physical condition.

Evers said the Orphans were in the best shape of the season, with no injuries. This was the first week no one on the team showed up Monday with a cold, he added.

Evers planned normal practice this week, but with some emphasis on a defense against the Flyers' passing attack. He called for scrimmaging to keep the blocking and tackling sharp.

You can't try to pick the winner by comparative scores, for the teams haven't played any common foes.

Centralia has bested Flora, Benton, Herrin, Murphysboro, Harrisburg, Salem, Marion, Mount Vernon and West Frankfort.

Springfield, Peoria Manual, Bloom, Assumption, St. Louis University High, Warren Central of Indianapolis, Danville Schlarmann, Granite City and Alton fell before the Flyers.

Centralia has averaged better than 40 points a game and allowed but five touchdowns all season. The Orphans' closest call was a 13-7 win over rugged Murphysboro.

Downing's squad has scored an average of 30 markers per contest, giving its opponents only eight touchdowns.

Baseball Men Say Yanks Got Best of Trade

By United Press
Joe Cronin said it very emphatically, and the majority of other top baseball executives agreed with him in more guarded language—the Yankees got the better of the Orioles in history's biggest baseball swap.

"They must have hypnotized Baltimore to pry Bob Turley loose," said Cronin, general manager of the Boston Red Sox.

There were several executives—notably the suitably modest Casey Stengel, manager of the Yankees—who expressed the belief that the Orioles had improved their own club by the 16-player deal that involved an estimated million dollars' worth of baseball talent.

But most agreed pretty much with Cronin's opinion that the Yankees "got just what they wanted," and the Orioles didn't get much help.

"I think that Turley is the key man in the deal," said Cronin. "The Orioles lost a great attraction when they let him go to New York. He is young, strong and only 24 with his whole future in front of him." The Washington Senators will draw much of the Baltimore crowd now that a great gate attraction like Turley is gone."

General Manager Hank Greenberg of the Cleveland Indians, who ended the Yankees' long reign as American league champions this year, also saw the trade as a Yankee triumph.

"If you pair off the players," explained Greenberg, "it would be Willie Miranda for Billy Hunter and Harry Byrd for Don Larsen, which would be about even. That means Woodling and McDonald were given up for Turley, and I think the Yanks probably got the edge there."

General Manager Frank Lane of Chicago White Sox said he thought the trade would make the Yankees "much tougher to beat next year."

Lane said he thought Orioles' General Manager Paul Richards "gave up quality to get quantity"—he has pretty nearly denuded the Yankee cupboard of trading material.

In his home at Glendale, Calif., Stengel didn't want to talk about the effect of the trade on his club, but freely predicted that the deal gave the Orioles "a great opportunity to be in fourth place."

"This deal is three-mendous for Baltimore," declared Casey. "I regret losing the ballplayers who helped me win championships. I mean Woodling and McDonald. All the players the Orioles got are capable of playing regularly on any American league club."

Carrier Mills Defeats Raleigh, 48-19, in Midget Conference Tilt

The Carrier Mills grade school cagers won another Midget conference basketball game Wednesday, defeating Raleigh 48-19. Carrier Mills now has a league record of four victories and one loss.

Carrier Mills also won the preliminary game. The contests were played on the winners' floor.

Next Wednesday Coach Harry Youcum will take his Carrier Mills cagers to Rosiclare for a non-loop game.

Coal Industry Is Essential, Mobilizer Says

PITTSBURGH, Pa.—The nation's coal operators had the assurance of Defense Mobilizer Arthur S. Fleming today that the federal government will not permit the industry to disintegrate in the face of a possible national emergency.

Fleming told the 500 delegates at the closing session of the National Coal Association's 37th annual convention Thursday night that the administration considers the coal industry an essential part of the nation's "mobilization base."

He said President Eisenhower "fervently" believes in keeping domestic industrial production at a level which will enable it "to take care of any emergency."

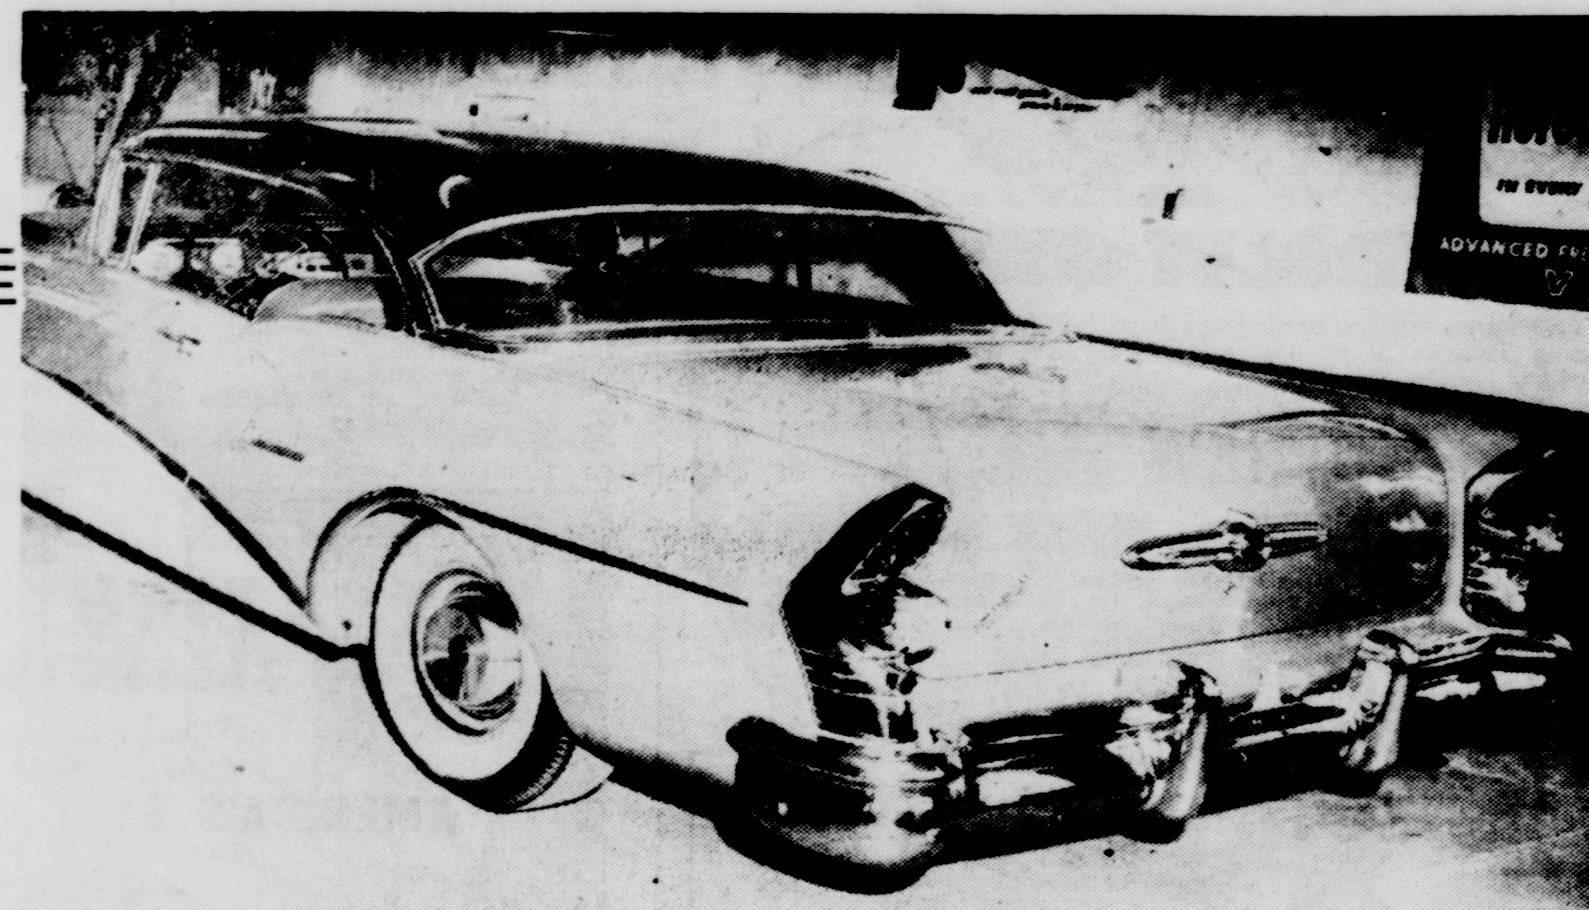

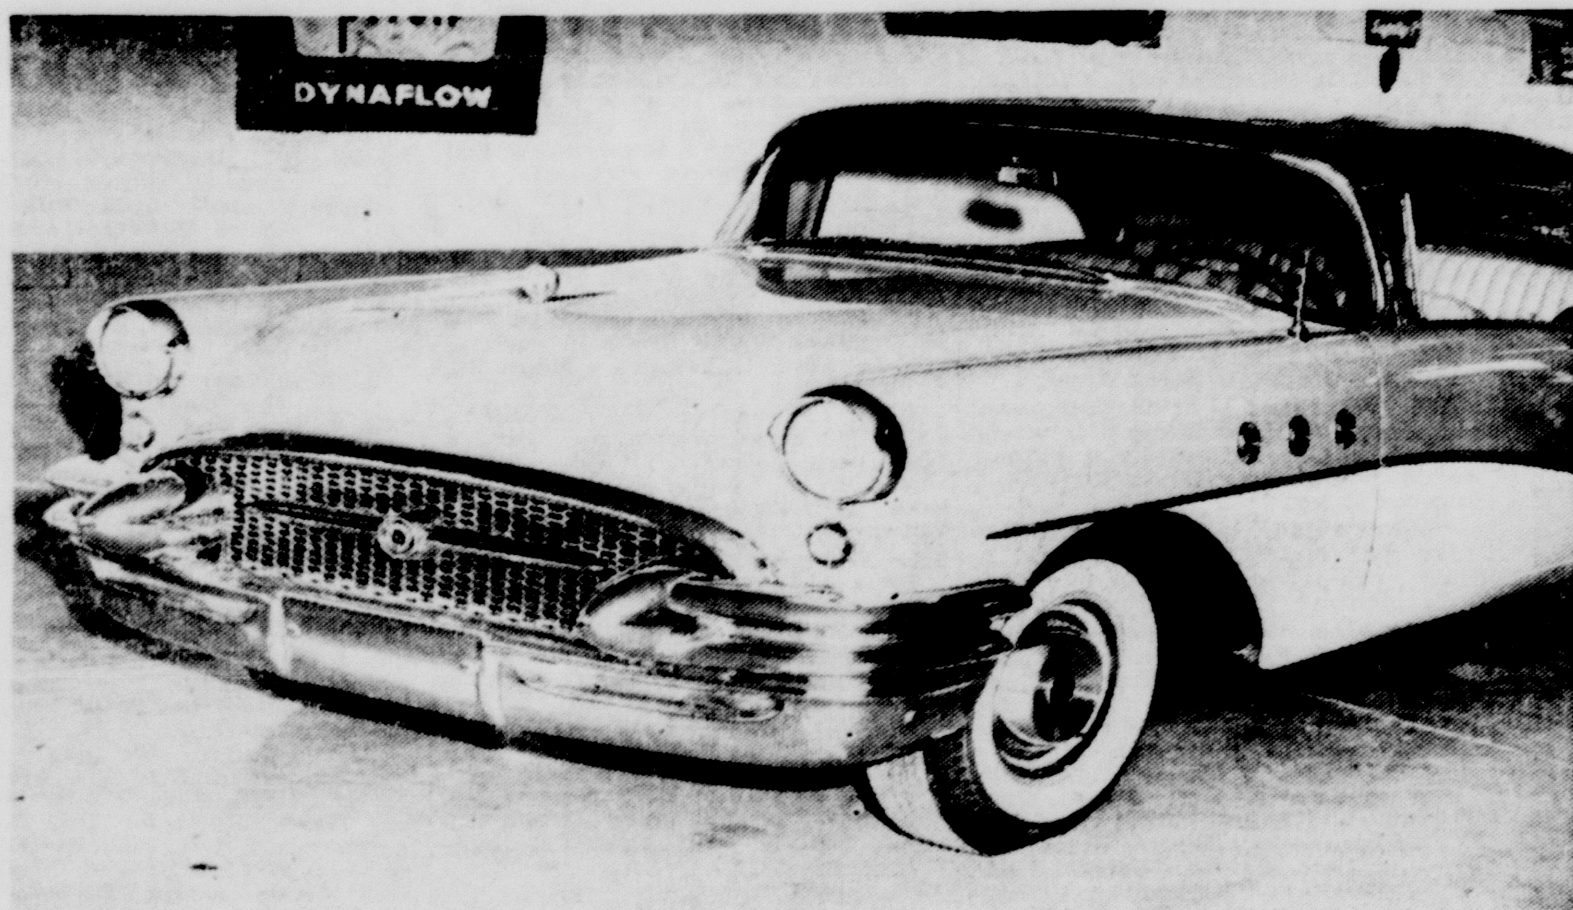

Fleming told delegates of the hard-pressed industry that a "task force" gathering information for the Cabinet Committee on Energy Resources is expected to make its report next week. The group has been studying the relation of the coal, gas and oil industries to the national defense.

Officers Re-elected
The defense mobilizer assured the operators the report will receive the "most serious" consideration by the executive branch and that Congress probably will receive recommendations from the committee.

A. C. Monteith, Westinghouse Electric Corp. research chief, told the delegates that although by the turn of the next century atomic energy will produce half the world's electricity, coal's share of the power business will have increased six to eight times and will require more than double the present total production.

The delegates re-elected all officers, including President L. C. Campbell of Pittsburgh. They also elected three men to fill vacancies on the executive board. They are George B. Harrington, president of Chicago, Wilmington and Franklin Coal Co., James W. Morgan, president of Ayrshire Collieries Corp., Indianapolis, and L. Newton Thomas, president, Carbon Fuel Co., Charleston, W. Va.

Approve Atoms For Peace Plan

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) — The United Nations prepared to give its overwhelming, if not unanimous, approval late today to President Eisenhower's "atoms for peace" plan.

The Soviet Union indicated it would go along with the West in voting for the plan and only a plea for postponement by the Indian delegate could block approval.

The United States and six other Western atomic powers placed before the committee Thursday a revised resolution embodying most of the suggestions made in a two-week debate on setting up the plan.

Russia did not join the other major atomic powers as a sponsor, but Soviet Delegate Andrei Y. Vishinsky announced Russian approval of the major part of the plan discussed by the 60-nation committee.

The only contentious point between Russia and the West was the composition of the International Conference of Atomic Scientists to be convened next summer to offer advice on putting the atom to peaceful work.

Reject Soviet Amendment
The United States, Britain, Canada, France, Australia, Belgium and South Africa presented a wording which would invite "all states who are members of the U. N. or of the specialized agencies to participate in the conference."

Russia, which had seen several of its other suggestions embodied in the final draft resolution, proposed a formal amendment which would invite all other states "which express their desire to do so to participate in the conference."

The West rejected this amendment, which would open the way for participation of Communist China and other Russian "junior members" including East Germany and North Korea. The United States already had put forward its firm opposition to Red China participation.

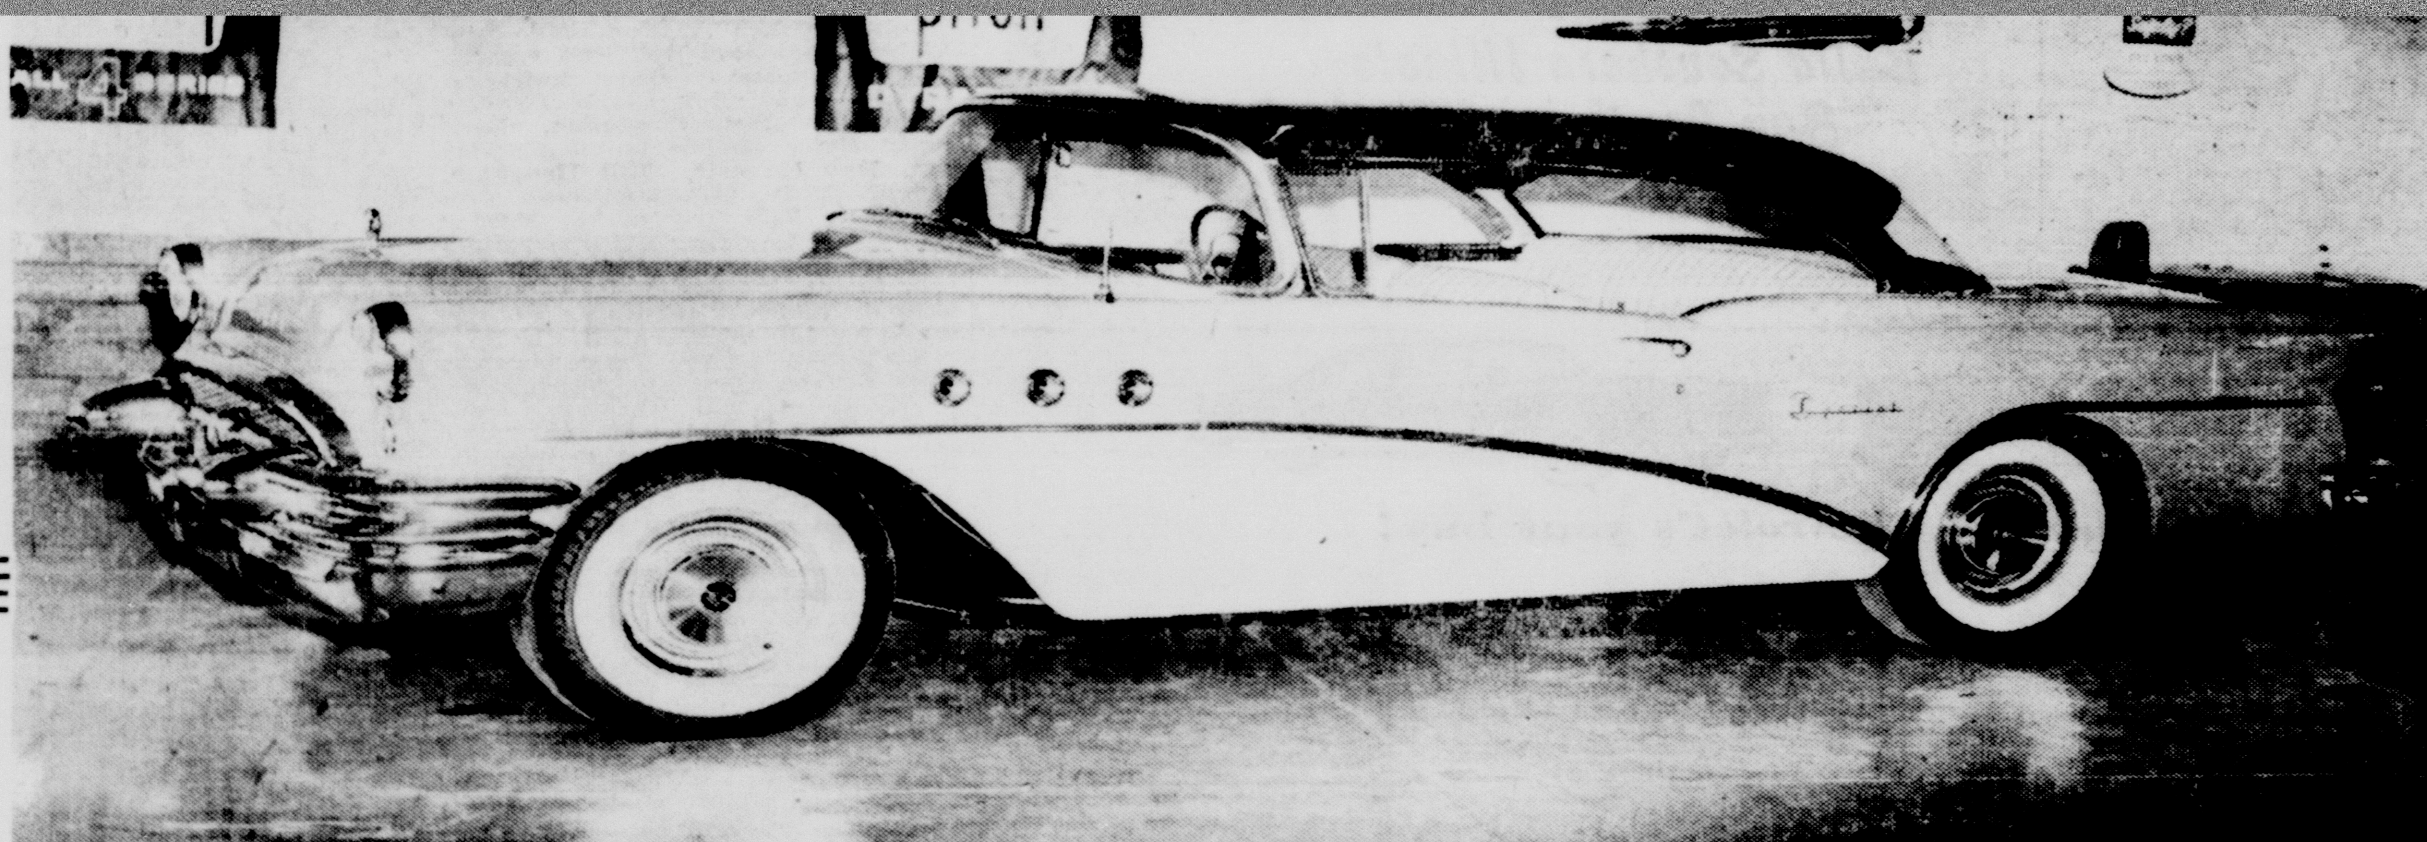

India's V. K. Krishna Menon sought to delay the vote. He hailed agreement between East and West on most points of the plan but insisted that he could not get final instruction from New Delhi on how to vote before 4 p. m. today.
